By your endurance you will gain your souls Luke 21.5-19

We pray for the sick, and those who are awaiting or recovering from surgery, those receiving treatment and those needing strength including Trevor Droesbeck, Andrez Marciszewski, Gregory Hachey (son of John & Diane), Joanne Bastarache, and Cory & Donald Berubé; and for those who have died including Aubrey Spencer and Natalie Greene, and for those who mourn the loss of a loved one.

My sisters and brothers, the three promises Jesus gives us in John 14, 23-29 gospel are awesome: 1) If the disciples (that's us, too) keep Jesus' Word, God will dwell in them, 2) the Holy Spirit will continue teaching them, 3) they'll have Jesus' own powerful peace. Neither the disciples nor we will be alone in the task of keeping Jesus' Word. God and the Church are with us. (Pp 208, SB 2025)

Birthday “Thank-You”

I want to thank all of you for the wonderful birthday party/pot luck held last Sunday in honour of my 60th birthday. As my friend Jeff Doucette would often remind me, “Phil, it’s not about presents; it’s about presence!” I received and appreciated both your presence and presents. The sentiments you expressed in your cards (including a card with a chicken playing an accordion), were touching. In gratitude. Fr. Phil

REFLECTIONS: A CREATURE BEFORE ITS CREATOR

Reflections, C.S. Lewis Institute

I turn next to the idea of glory. There is no getting away from the fact that this idea is very prominent in the New Testament and in early Christian writings. Salvation is constantly associated with palms, crowns, white robes, thrones, and splendor like the sun and stars. All this makes no immediate appeal to me at all, and in that respect I fancy I am a typical modern. Glory suggests two ideas to me, of which one seems wicked and the other ridiculous. Either glory means to me fame, or it means luminosity. As for the first, since to be famous means to be better known than other people, the desire for fame appears to me as a competitive passion and therefore of hell rather than heaven. As for the second, who wishes to become a kind of living electric light bulb?

When I began to look into this matter I was shocked to find such different Christians as Milton, Johnson and Thomas Aquinas taking heavenly glory quite frankly in the sense of fame or good report. But not fame conferred by our fellow creatures – fame with God, approval or (I might say) “appreciation” by God. And then, when I had thought it over, I saw that this view was scriptural; nothing can eliminate from the parable the divine accolade, “Well done, thou good and faithful servant.” With that, a good deal of what I had been thinking all my life fell down like a house of cards. I suddenly remembered that no one can enter heaven except as a child; and nothing is so obvious in a child – not in a conceited child, but in a good child – as its great and undisguised pleasure in being praised. Not only in a child, either, but even in a dog or a horse. Apparently what I had mistaken for humility had, all these years, prevented me from understanding what is in fact the humblest, the most childlike, the most creaturely of pleasures – nay, the specific pleasure of the inferior: the pleasure of a beast before men, a child before its father, a pupil before his teacher, a creature before its Creator. I am not forgetting how horribly this most innocent desire is parodied in our human ambitions, or how very quickly, in my own experience, the lawful pleasure of praise from those whom it was my duty to please turns into the deadly poison of self-admiration. But I thought I could detect a moment – a very, very short moment – before this happened, during which the satisfaction of having pleased those whom I rightly loved and rightly feared was pure. And that is enough to raise our thoughts to what may happen when the redeemed soul, beyond all hope and nearly beyond belief, learns at last that she has pleased Him whom she was created to please. There will be no room for vanity then. She will be free from the miserable illusion that it is her doing. With no taint of what we should now call self-approval she will most innocently rejoice in the thing that God has made her to be...²

Are you living your life in a way that pleases your Creator?

“To them God chose to make known how great among the Gentiles are the riches of the glory of this mystery, which is Christ in you, the hope of glory.”
